Credit Reports: What Information Providers Need to Know

The Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) is designed to protect the privacy of credit report information and to guarantee that information supplied by consumer reporting agencies (CRAs) is as accurate as possible. If you provide information to a CRA, such as a credit bureau, be aware that amendments to the law spell out new legal obligations. These amendments were effective September 30, 1997.

DOES THE FCRA AFFECT ME?

If you report information about consumers to a CRA, you are considered a “furnisher” of information under the FCRA. CRAs include many types of databases — credit bureaus, tenant screening companies, check verification services, and medical information services — that collect information to help businesses evaluate consumers. If you provide information to a CRA regularly, the FCRA requires that the CRA send you a notice of your responsibilities.

WHAT ARE MY RESPONSIBILITIES?

The responsibilities of information providers are found in Section 623 of the FCRA, 15 U.S.C. § 1681s-2, and are explained here. Items 2 and 5 apply only to furnishers who provide information to CRAs “regularly and in the ordinary course of their business.” All information providers must comply with the other responsibilities.

1. General Prohibition on Reporting Inaccurate Information — Section 623(a)(1)(A) and Section 623(a)(1)(C).

You may not furnish information that you know — or consciously avoid knowing — is inaccurate. If you “clearly and conspicuously” provide consumers with an address for dispute notices, you are exempt from this obligation but subject to the duties discussed in Item 3.

Facts for Business

What does “clear and conspicuous” mean? Reasonably easy to read and understand. For example, a notice buried in a mailing is not clear or conspicuous.

2. Correcting and Updating Information — Section 623(a)(2).

If you discover you’ve supplied one or more CRAs with incomplete or inaccurate information, you must correct it, resubmit to each CRA, and report only the correct information in the future.

3. Responsibilities After Notice of a Consumer Dispute from a Consumer — Sections 623(a)(1)(B) and 623(a)(3).

If a consumer writes to the address you specify for disputes to challenge the accuracy of any information you furnished, and if the information is, in fact, inaccurate, you must report only the correct information to CRAs in the future. If you are a regular furnisher, you also will have to satisfy the duties in Item 2.

Once a consumer has given notice that he or she disputes information, you may not give that information to any CRA without also telling the CRA that the information is in dispute.

4. Responsibilities After Receiving Notice from a Consumer Reporting Agency — Section 623(b).

If a CRA notifies you that a consumer disputes information you provided:

- You must investigate the dispute and review all relevant information provided by the CRA about the dispute.
- You must report your findings to the CRA.

- If your investigation shows the information to be incomplete or inaccurate, you must provide corrected information to all national CRAs that received the information.
- You should complete these steps within the time period that the FCRA sets out for the CRA to resolve the dispute — normally 30 days after receipt of a dispute notice from the consumer. If the consumer provides additional relevant information during the 30-day period, the CRA has 15 days more. The CRA must give you all relevant information that it gets within five business days of receipt, and must promptly give you additional relevant information provided from the consumer. If you do not investigate and respond within the specified time periods, the CRA must delete the disputed information from its files.

5. Reporting Voluntary Account Closings — Section 623(a)(4).

You must notify CRAs when consumers voluntarily close credit accounts. This is important because some information users may interpret a closed account as an indicator of bad credit unless it is clearly disclosed that the consumer — not the creditor — closed the account.

6. Reporting Delinquencies — Section 623(a)(5).

If you report information about a delinquent account that’s placed for collection, charged to profit or loss, or subject to any similar action, you must, within 90 days after you report the information, notify the CRA of the month and the year of the commencement of the delinquency that immediately preceded your action. This will ensure that CRAs use the correct date when computing how long derogatory information can be kept in a consumer's file.

How do you report accounts that you have charged off or placed for collection? For example:

- A consumer becomes delinquent on March 15, 1998. The creditor places the account for collection on October 1, 1998.

In this case, the delinquency began on March 15, 1998. The date that the creditor places the account for collection has no significance for calculating how long the account can stay on the consumer's credit report. In this case, the date that must be reported to CRAs within 90 days after you first report the collection action is "March 1998."

- A consumer falls behind on monthly payments in January 1998, brings the account current in June 1998, pays on time and in full every month through October 1998, and thereafter makes no payments. The creditor charges off the account in December 1999.

In this case, the most recent delinquency began when the consumer failed to make the payment due in November 1998. The earlier delinquency is irrelevant. The creditor must report the November 1998 date within 90 days of reporting the charge-off. For example, if the creditor charges off the account in December 1999, and reports this charge-off on December 31, 1999, the creditor must provide the month and year of the delinquency (i.e., "November 1998") within 90 days of December 31, 1999.

- A consumer's account becomes delinquent on December 15, 1997. The account is first placed for collection on April 1, 1998. Collection is not successful. The merchant places the account with a second collection agency on June 1, 2003.

The date of the delinquency for reporting purposes is "December 1997." Repeatedly placing an account for collection does not change the date that the delinquency began.

- A consumer's credit account becomes delinquent on April 15, 1998. The consumer makes partial payments for the next five months but never brings the account current. The merchant places the account for collection in May of 1999.

Since the account was never brought current during the period that partial payments were made, the delinquency that immediately preceded the collection commenced in April 1998 when the consumer first became delinquent.

I. OVERVIEW OF FAIR CREDIT REPORTING ACT (FCRA), 15 U.S.C. §1681 ET SEQ.

A. Background.

1. The Fair Credit Reporting Act (“FCRA” or the “Act”) is designed to regulate the use of information for consumer credit, employment, insurance, and certain other purposes in a manner that is fair and equitable to the consumer, with regard to the confidentiality, accuracy, relevancy, and proper utilization of such information.
2. In general, FCRA attempts to make the use of credit information (by financial institutions, insurance companies, employers and businesses) transparent to consumers by, along with the Equal Credit Opportunity Act (ECOA), requiring financial institutions to notify consumers when adverse action has been taken and requiring Consumer Reporting Agencies (CRAs) to disclose consumer reports to individuals, to investigate disputed information, and to correct errors.
3. The Act restricts the use of consumer reports and requires the deletion of information that is older than prescribed periods. It also places obligations on the furnishers of information to Consumer Reporting Agencies (CRAs).
4. The Act only pertains to consumer credit, and was not enacted to protect consumers in procuring commercial credit.

B. FCRA’s Purpose and Agency Guidance.

1. The basic purpose of FCRA is to require CRAs to adopt reasonable procedures for providing information to credit grantors, insurers, employers and others in a manner that is fair and equitable to the consumer with regard to confidentiality, accuracy, and the proper use of such information.
2. While there is no regulation implementing FCRA, the Federal Reserve Board (FRB) has issued a “Background and Summary of the Fair Credit Reporting Act” and “Questions and Answers About the Fair Credit Reporting Act.”
3. The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has issued interpretations and a commentary with respect to the FCRA See 16 C.F.R. §600. See also, CCH Consumer Credit Guide, paragraphs 26,701 et. seq.

II. KEY DEFINITIONS.

A. Consumer Report.

1. The term “consumer report” means “any written, oral or other communications of information by a CRA bearing on a consumer’s credit worthiness, credit standing, credit capacity, character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living which is used or expected to be used or collected in whole or in part for the purpose of serving as a factor in establishing the consumer's eligibility for (1) credit or insurance to be used primarily for personal, family, or household purposes; (2) employment purposes; or (3) other purposes."

a. To be a "consumer report," the information must be furnished by a CRA as that term is defined below.

b. The term "CRA" is restricted to persons regularly engaged in assembling or evaluating consumer credit information or other information on consumers for the purpose of furnishing "consumer reports" to third parties.

2. Commercial credit reports are not consumer reports. FCRA does not apply to reports about corporations, associations, and similar entities.
3. Exclusions from the definition of a consumer report include reports containing information solely concerning transactions/experiences between the consumer and the person making the report; authorizations /approvals of a specific charge (extension of credit) directly or indirectly by the issuer of a credit or debit card; or reports concerning a retailer's attempt to obtain credit for their individual customers from an outside source (such as a bank or finance company).

B. Investigative Consumer Report.

1. The term "investigative consumer report" means a consumer report (or portion thereof) in which information on a consumer's character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living is obtained through personal interviews with neighbors, friends, or associates of the consumer reported on, or with others with whom he is acquainted, or who may have knowledge concerning any such items of information. However, such information does not include specific factual information on a consumer's credit record obtained directly from a creditor of the consumer or from a CRA, when such information was obtained directly for a creditor of the consumer or from the consumer.
 - a. The term "investigative consumer report" denotes a subset of "consumer report" for which the Act imposes additional requirements on recipients and on CRAs [see pages 7-8 infra].

C. Consumer Reporting Agency (CRA).

1. The term CRA means any person which, for monetary fees, dues, or on a cooperative nonprofit basis, regularly engages in whole or in part in the practice of assembling or evaluating consumer credit information or other information on consumers for the purpose of furnishing consumer reports to third parties, and which uses any means or facility of interstate commerce for the purpose of preparing or furnishing consumer reports.

2. Parties that do not “regularly” engage in assembling or evaluating information for the purpose of furnishing consumer reports to third parties are not CRAs.
3. A consumer report user does not become a CRA by regularly giving a copy of the report, or otherwise disclosing it, to the consumer who is the subject of the report, because it is not disclosing the information to a “third party.”
4. Private investigators and detective agencies that regularly obtain consumer reports and furnish them to clients may thereby become CRAs.
5. Collection agencies and creditors become CRAs if they regularly furnish information beyond their transactions or experiences with consumers to third parties for use in connection with consumers’ transactions.

D. Adverse action.

1. The term “adverse action” means any of the following:
 - a. a denial or cancellation of, an increase in any charge for, or a reduction or other adverse or unfavorable change in the terms of coverage or amount of, any insurance, existing or applied for, in connection with the underwriting of insurance; or
 - b. a denial of employment or any other decision for employment purposes that adversely affects any current or prospective employee; or
 - c. a denial or cancellation of, an increase in any charge for, or any other adverse or unfavorable change in the terms of, any license or benefit described in section 1681b(a)(3)(D) of this title; and
 - d. an action taken or determination that is --
 - (i). made in connection with an application that was made by, or a transaction that was initiated by, any consumer, or in connection with a review of an account; and
 - (ii). adverse to the interest of the consumer.

III. PERMISSIBLE PURPOSES OF CONSUMER REPORTS.

- A. A consumer report may be furnished for use in connection with a credit transaction involving the consumer, primarily for personal, family or household purposes, and involving the extension of credit to, or review or collection of, a consumer’s account.

- B. There are two key rules for determining the only permissible insurance purposes for obtaining consumer reports:
1. Underwriting - an insurer may obtain a consumer report to decide whether or not to issue a policy to the consumer, the amount and terms of coverage, the duration of the policy, the rates or fees charged, or whether not to renew or cancel a policy, because these are all “underwriting” decisions.
 2. Claim and administration/subrogation - An insurer may not obtain a consumer report for the purpose of evaluating a claim (to ascertain its validity or otherwise determine what action should be taken), because permissible purposes relating to insurance are limited by this section to “underwriting” purposes.
- C. “Permissible purposes” relating to employment include reports used for evaluating a consumer “for employment, promotion, reassignment or retention as an employee.”
1. An employer may obtain a consumer report on a current employee in connection with an investigation of the disappearance of money from employment premises, because “retention as an employee” is included in the definition of “employment purposes.”
 2. An employer may obtain a consumer report for use in evaluating the subject’s application for employment, but may not obtain a consumer report to evaluate the application of a consumer who is not the subject of the report.
- D. Other permissible purposes are limited to transactions that consumers enter into primarily for personal, family or household purposes (excluding credit, insurance or employment, which are specifically covered by other subsections discussed above). FCRA does not cover reports furnished for transactions that consumers enter into primarily in connection with businesses they operate (e.g., a consumer’s rental of equipment for use in his retail store).
1. A party has a permissible purpose to obtain a consumer report on a consumer who applies to rent an apartment, offers to pay for goods with a check, applies for a checking account or similar service, seeks to be included in a computer dating service, or who has sought and received over-payments of government benefits that he has refused to return.
 2. The possibility that a party may be involved in litigation involving a consumer does not provide a permissible purpose for that party to receive a consumer report on such consumer, because litigation is not a “business transaction” involving the consumer. Therefore, potential plaintiffs may not always obtain reports on potential defendants to determine whether they are worth suing. The transaction that gives rise to the litigation may or may not provide a permissible purpose. If that underlying transaction is a business transaction involving the consumer, there is a permissible purpose. If the litigation arises from a tort, there is not permissible purpose. Similarly, a consumer report may not be obtained solely for use in discrediting a witness at trial or for locating a witness. The Act does not permit CRAs to furnish consumer reports for the purpose of locating a person suspected of committing a crime.

- E. A CRA may furnish a consumer report “in response to the order of a court having jurisdiction to issue such an order.”
- F. A CRA may furnish a consumer report” in accordance with the written instructions of the consumer to whom it relates.”
- G. A CRA may issue a consumer report to “a person which it has reason to believe . . . intends to use the information in connection with a credit transaction involving the consumer on whom the information is to be furnished and involving the extension of credit to, or review or collection of an account of, the consumer.”
 - 1. A collection agency has a permissible purpose under this section to receive a consumer report for use in attempting to collect a consumer’s debt, regardless of whether that debt is assigned or referred for collection. An attorney may obtain a consumer report under this section on a consumer for use in connection with a decision whether to sue that individual to collect a credit account.
 - 2. A judgment creditor has a permissible purpose to receive a consumer report on the judgment debtor for use in connection with collection of the judgment debt, because such a creditor is in the same position as any general creditor attempting to collect a debt from a consumer who is the subject of a consumer report.
- H. Information on an Applicant’s Spouse.
 - 1. A creditor may request any information concerning an applicant’s spouse if that spouse will be permitted to use the account or will be contractually liable upon the account, or the applicant is relying on the spouse’s income as a basis for repayment of the credit requested.
 - 2. A permissible purpose for issuing a consumer report on a nonapplicant spouse can never exist under FCRA, where ECOA Regulation B (12 CFR 202), prohibits the creditor from requesting information on such spouse. There is no permissible purpose to obtain a consumer report on a nonapplicant former spouse, or on a nonapplicant spouse who has legally separated or otherwise indicated an intent to legally disassociate with the marriage.

- I. “Prescreening” is a permissible purpose under FCRA to obtain a consumer report on a prospective purchaser to whom one is planning to extend credit. “Prescreening” means the process whereby a CRA compiles or edits a list of consumers who meet specific criteria and provides this list to the client or a third party (such as a mailing service) on behalf of the client for use in soliciting these consumers for the client’s products or services. The client’s creditworthiness criteria may be provided only to the CRA and not to the third party performing the demographic analysis. The CRA that performs a “prescreening” service may furnish a client with several different lists of consumers who meet different sets of creditworthiness criteria supplied by the client, for the purpose of making different credit offers (e.g., various credit limits) to consumers who meet the different criteria.

IV. OBLIGATIONS IMPOSED ON CRAS

A. The Duties of CRAs. They must:

1. have permissible purposes to furnish consumer reports;
2. avoid furnishing obsolete adverse information in certain consumer reports;
3. adopt reasonable procedures to assure privacy and accuracy of consumer reports ;
4. provide only limited disclosures to governmental agencies;
5. provide consumers certain disclosures upon request at no cost or for a reasonable charge;
6. follow certain procedures if a consumer disputes the completeness or accuracy of any item of information contained in his file; and
7. follow certain procedures in reporting public record information for employment purposes or when reporting adverse information other than public record information in investigative consumer reports.

V. OBLIGATIONS OF USERS OF CONSUMER REPORTS

A. General Obligations of All Users of Consumer Reports.

1. Users Must Have a Permissible Purpose (extension of credit, underwriting or employment).
2. Users Must Provide Certifications. FCRA prohibits any person from obtaining a consumer report from a CRA unless the person has certified to the CRA (by general or specific certification, as appropriate) the permissible purpose(s) for which the report is being obtained, and also certifies that the report will not be used for any other purpose.

3. Users Must Notify Customers When Adverse Actions are Taken.
“Adverse action” is defined very broadly to include all business, credit, and employment actions affecting consumers that can be considered to have a negative impact -- such as unfavorably changing credit or contract terms or conditions, denying or canceling credit or insurance, offering credit on less favorable terms than requested, or denying employment or promotion.
 - a. If a user takes any type of adverse action that is based at least in part on information contained in a consumer report, the user is required by FCRA to notify the consumer. The notification may be done in writing, orally, or by electronic means.
 - b. If a person denies (or increases the charge for) credit for personal, family, or household purposes based either wholly or partly upon information from a person other than a CRA, FCRA requires that the user clearly and accurately disclose to the consumer his or her right to obtain disclosure of the nature of the information that was relied upon by making a written request within 60 days of notification. The user must provide the disclosure within a reasonable period of time.
 - c. If a person takes an adverse action and this information was obtained from an entity affiliated with the user of the information by common ownership or control, FCRA Section 615(b)(2) requires the user to notify the consumer of the adverse action.

B. Obligations of Users When Consumer Reports Are Obtained for Employment Purposes.

1. The user must:
 - a. Make a clear and conspicuous written disclosure to the consumer before the report is obtained, in a document that consists solely of the disclosure, that a consumer report may be obtained;
 - b. Obtain prior written authorization from the consumer; and
 - c. Certify to the CRA that the above steps have been followed, that the information being obtained will not be used in violation of any federal or state equal employment opportunity law or regulation.
2. Before taking adverse action, provide a copy of the report to the consumer as well as the summary of the consumer’s rights.

C. Obligations of Users of Investigative Consumer Reports.

1. If a user intends to obtain an investigative consumer report, FCRA requires the following:
 - a. The user must disclose to the consumer that an investigative consumer report may be obtained. This must be done in a written disclosure that is mailed, or otherwise delivered, to the consumer not later than three days after the date on which the report was first requested. The disclosure must include a statement informing the consumer of his or her right to request additional information concerning of the nature and scope of the investigation as described below, and must include the summary of consumer rights;
 - b. The user must certify to the CRA that the disclosures set forth above have been made; and
 - c. Upon the written request of a consumer made within a reasonable period of time after the disclosures required above, the user must make a complete disclosure of the nature and scope of the investigation that was requested. This explanation must be via a written statement that is mailed, or otherwise delivered, to the consumer no later than five days after the date on which the request was received from the consumer or the report was first requested, whichever is later in time.

D. Obligations of Users of Consumer Reports Containing Medical Information

1. FCRA prohibits CRAs from providing consumer reports that contain medical information for employment purposes; or in connection with credit or insurance transactions, without the specific prior consent of the consumer who is the subject of the report.

E. Obligations of Users of “Prescreened” Lists.

1. FCRA permits creditors and insurers to obtain limited consumer report information for use in connection with unsolicited offers of credit or insurance under certain circumstances (for use in conjunction with “firm offers of credit”). If any person intends to use prescreened lists, that person must (1) before the offer is made, establish the criteria that will be relied upon to make the offer to grant credit or insurance, and (2) maintain such criteria on file for a three-year period beginning on the date on which the offer is made to each consumer. In addition, any user must provide with each written firm offer of credit a clear and conspicuous statement that:

- a. Information contained in a consumer's CRA file was used in connection with the transaction;
 - b. The consumer received the offer because he or she satisfied the criteria for creditworthiness or insurability used to screen for the offer; and
 - c. Credit or insurance may not be extended if, after the consumer responds, it is determined that the consumer does not meet the criteria used for screening, or any applicable criteria bearing on creditworthiness or insurability, or the consumer does not furnish required collateral.
2. The consumer may prohibit the use of information in his or her file in connection with future prescreened offers of credit or insurance by contacting the notification system of the CRA that provided the report. The firm offer of credit must include the address and toll-free telephone number of the appropriate notification system.

F. Obligations of Resellers.

- 1. FCRA requires any person who obtains a consumer report for resale to take the following steps:
 - a. Disclose the identity of the end-user to the source CRA.
 - b. Identify to the source CRA each permissible purpose for which the report will be furnished to the end-user.
 - c. Establish and follow reasonable procedures to ensure that reports are resold only for permissible purposes, including procedures to obtain the following:
 - 1. the identity of all end-users;
 - 2. certification from all users of each purpose for which reports will be used; and
 - 3. certifications that reports will not be used for any purpose other than the purpose(s) specified to the reseller. Resellers must make reasonable efforts to verify this information before selling the report.

VI. CIVIL LIABILITY UNDER FCRA (SECTIONS 1681N AND 1681O).

- A. If a user willfully fails to comply with FCRA, then it is liable for actual damages of not less than $100 and not more than $1,000 (or in the case of liability of a natural person for obtaining a consumer report under false pretenses or knowingly without a permissible purpose, actual damages sustained by the consumer as a result of the failure or $1,000, whichever is greater). Punitive damages are allowed for willful violations, and, if the consumer prevails, reasonable attorneys' fees and costs can be added. If a user negligently fails to comply with FCRA, then it is liable for actual damages plus costs and reasonable attorneys' fees if the consumer prevails.

- B. Any person who obtains a consumer report from a CRA under false pretenses or knowingly without a permissible purpose is liable to the CRA for actual damages or $1,000, whichever is greater. Further, any person who knowingly and willfully obtains information on an individual from a CRA under false pretenses, and any officer or employee of a CRA who knowingly and willfully provides information from the agency's files to an unauthorized person, may be fined, imprisoned for not more than two years, or both.

VII. LIMITATIONS/FEES

A. Statute of Limitations.

- 1. “[A]n action to enforce any liability created under [FCRA] may be brought . . . within two years from the date on which the liability arises.”
A “discovery rule” does not govern FCRA.

B. Attorneys' Fees.

- 1. A plaintiff may be awarded, “in the case of any successful action to enforce any liability under this section, the costs of the action together with reasonable attorneys' fees as determined by the court.” (Attorneys' fees may not be awarded in cases where the plaintiff did not recover actual or statutory damages, and where the attorneys' fees would be the only award to the plaintiff.)

VIII. AMENDMENTS CONTAINED IN SECTIONS 358(G) AND 505(C) OF THE USA PATRIOT ACT.

- A. The Uniting and Strengthening America by Providing Appropriate Tolls Required to Intercept and Obstruct Terrorism Act (“USA Patriot Act”) -- amended FCRA to require CRAs to furnish consumer reports and other information in their files to government agencies authorized to conduct investigations of, or intelligence activities relating to, international terrorism.
- B. Section 358(g) of the USA PATRIOT ACT adds the following provisions to FCRA:
 - 1. Disclosures to governmental agencies for counter terrorism purposes. A CRA shall furnish a consumer report and all other information in a consumer's file to a government agency authorized to conduct investigations of, or intelligence of, counterintelligence activities or analysis related to, international terrorism when presented with a written certification by such government agency that such information is necessary for the agency's conduct or such investigation, activity or analysis.

2. The certification described above shall be signed by a supervisory official designated by the head of a Federal agency or an officer of a Federal agency whose appointment to office is required to be made by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.
3. No CRA, or officer, employee, or agent of such CRA, shall disclose to any person, or specify in any consumer report, that a government agency has sought or obtained access to information described above.
4. Any CRA or employee thereof making disclosure of consumer reports or other information pursuant to this section in good-faith reliance upon a certification of a governmental agency pursuant to the provisions of this section shall not be liable to any person for such disclosure under this subchapter, the constitution of any State, or any law or regulation of any State or any political subdivision of any State.

IX. OVERVIEW OF FACT ACT AMENDMENTS [EFFECTIVE 12/14/04]

A. Purpose

On December 4, 2003, Congress passed significant amendments to FCRA in the form of the Fair and Accurate Credit Transaction (FACT) Act. [The previous FCRA modifications had been via the Consumer Credit Reporting Reform Act of 1996.] The FACT Act focuses on the following areas: preventing identity theft, improving the use of and consumer access to consumer reports, enhancing the accuracy of consumer reports, limiting the sharing of consumer information, improving financial education and literacy, and ensuring the preemption of State laws in areas which might conflict with federal regulations. These new provisions to FCRA are effective December 4, 2004 (unless otherwise specified.)

The FACT Act is enforceable by FTC action or private lawsuits (except for a couple of noted areas) according to the existing enforcement mechanisms in FCRA. Class action claims are not specifically affected or limited in any manner by the FACT Act.

B. Identity Theft Prevention

The FACT Act attempts to prevent the crime from occurring and to help consumers who are victims of the crime to clear their credit records. The following three types of "red-flags" or fraud alerts are prescribed so that the CRAs can help manage the identity theft problem:

1. Initial Alert. A consumer can notify a CRA that they are about to or have become a victim of fraud or a related crime (including identity theft) and the CRA must include a fraud alert in the consumer's file and also include that alert with any credit score generated on that consumer for at least 90 days after notice. The notified CRA must also notify other nationwide CRAs and also inform the consumer of the right to obtain a free consumer report and provide other FCRA required disclosures.

2. Extended Alert. If a consumer reports an “identity theft” to a CRA, then the CRA must place a fraud alert in the consumer’s file (and credit score) for a seven year period (unless the consumer requests a removal). The CRA must also exclude the consumer from any prescreened offers of credit or insurance for five years (unless the consumer requests otherwise). Finally, the CRA must refer the extended fraud alert to other nationwide CRAs.
3. Active Duty Alert. A consumer on active military duty may have a nationwide CRA place such alert on their credit file (and any credit score) for a one year period and exclude the consumer from any prescreened offers of credit or insurance for two years.

C. Credit and Debit Card Account Numbers.

The FACT Act phases in the requirement to truncate and print receipts of not more than the last five digits of credit or debit card numbers. This applies only to electronically printed receipts. The prohibition goes into effect either December 4, 2004, or December 4, 2006, depending upon the date of initial use of the cash register.

D. Identity Theft Protection Procedures.

1. FTC Model Summary of Rights of Identity Theft Victims. A consumer has a right to an application for notice of identity theft and to business transaction records evidencing any alleged identity theft. (Section 151 of the Act (amending Section 609(d) of FCRA)).
2. Blocking CRA Reporting of Transactions Tainted by Identity Theft Claims. A CRA must block the reporting of any information in the file which a consumer identifies as resulting from alleged identity theft within four days after the CRA receives prescribed levels of proof by the consumer. (Section 152 of the Act (amending sections 605B of FCRA)).
3. Investigations of Identity Theft. The FTC and federal banking agencies developed model forms and procedures for consumers to use in contacting CRAs and informing creditors if identity theft investigations are in play. (Section 153 of the Act (amending Section 521(f) of FCRA)). The FTC-proposed regulations to implement the alert sections of the FACT Act were published April 21, 2004, see www.ftc.gov/opa/2004/04/factafrn0421.htm

4. Debt Collector Notice Duty. Any person acting as a debt collector must pass along any notice from a consumer that the debt may be fraudulent or the result of identity theft. (Section 155 of the Act (amending Section 615(g) of FCRA)).

E. Access to Credit Information and Credit Scores.

1. Free Consumer Reports. All nationwide CRAs must provide consumers one free copy of a consumer's report each year if requested. The FTC has also prescribed regulations for "specialty CRAs" (e.g. those focused on check writing databases, housing rentals, medical records, or employment history databases) to provide one free copy of their report. The Regulations can be found on the FTC website at www.ftc.gov. Deadlines for providing a consumer a copy of a requested consumer report is within 15 days of the request date. Any investigations into alleged consumer identity theft must be completed within 45 days after requested. (Section 211 of the Act (amending Section 612(a) of FCRA)).
2. FTC Summary of Rights. The FTC has issued a model summary of a consumer's rights to obtain and to dispute information contained in consumer reports and to request their credit scores.
3. FTC Regulations for Nationwide CRAs. The FTC has established regulations applicable to nationwide CRAs requiring the establishment of a centralized source through which consumers may obtain a free consumer report from each CRA using a single request and a standardized form to request a consumer report through the internet or via regular mail.
4. Entitlement to Credit Scores. Upon a consumer's request, a CRA must provide a credit score and other specific information. CRAs may charge a "reasonable fee" for the service. The CRAs must also provide the following: (i) a statement of the credit score or the most recent credit score of the consumer; (ii) the range of possible credit scores; (iii) an explanation of up to four key factors that adversely affected that consumer's credit score; (iv) the date of the credit score; and (v) the name of the entity that provided the score. (Section 212 of the Act (amending Section 509(f) of FCRA)).
5. Certain Mortgage Lenders' Duty to Disclose Credit Scores. Lenders/brokers who make or arrange loans and use credit scores in connection with applications by consumers for open or closed end loans secured by residential real estate must provide the consumer both with their credit score and with a prescribed statutory notice explaining how credit scoring works for home loans. (Section 212 of the Act (amending Section 509(g) of FCRA)).

F. Opting Out of Prescreened Lists/FRB Study.

1. The FTC and federal banking agencies must develop a new notice informing consumers of their right to opt out of prescreened lists that are prepared by CRAs for financial institutions and insurance companies offering pre-approved credit or insurance. (Section 213 of the Act (amending Section 615(d)(2) of FCRA)).

2. The FRB conducted a study and submitted a report to Congress making recommendations for legislative or administrative action regarding prescreened offers of credit or insurance. The study focuses on the ability of consumers to avoid receiving such offers and the potential impact of further restrictions on financial institutions/insurance companies. See www.FRB.gov.

G. Affiliate Sharing Restrictions. Prior to the FACT Act, FCRA allowed a company to share transaction and experience information with a particular customer among “affiliates” without any FCRA limitations. Consumer reports could be shared among affiliates if the customer was given notice and the right to opt out.

The FACT ACT imposed new restrictions on the use of customer information for marketing purposes.

1. Disclosure/opt-out Rules. The Act disallows the use of consumer reports for marketing solicitations among affiliates unless there is “clear and conspicuous” disclosure to the consumer that such information may be communicated among affiliates for purposes of making such solicitations and the consumer is provided a simple method to opt-out. If a consumer elects to opt-out, then the affiliate solicitation prohibition lasts for at least five years before the consumer can be approached again to decide whether to receive such solicitations. (Section 214(a) of the Act (amending Section 524(d)(2) of FCRA)).
2. Exceptions to the Restrictions. There are instances where affiliate is not limited. For example, affiliated companies were allowed to use customer information for marketing prior to the September 4, 2004, prescribed effective date of proposed regulations.

In addition, if the data does not constitute a “consumer report,” then it can be shared among affiliates. Moreover, if the use of the data is not for “marketing purposes,” then companies can keep and share data for fraud prosecution or risk management, without triggering disclosure and opt-out duties.

Other specific “exceptions” to the affiliate sharing restrictions of the Act include the following: (a) use of the information for marketing to a consumer with a “pre-existing business relationship;” (b) concerning employee benefits or other services pursuant to a contract with an employer; (c) using the information to perform services on behalf of an affiliate; (d) using information in response to a communication initiated by the consumer; (e) using information in response to a consumer request for solicitations or authorization of same; or (f) to ensure compliance with state law regulations of insurance prohibiting unfair discrimination (Section 214(a) of the Act (amending Section 524(a)(4) of FCRA)).

3. Preemption of State Laws. The FACT Act affiliate sharing provisions preempt state laws relating to the exchange and use of information among affiliates concerning solicitations for marketing purposes. The extent and the effectiveness of this preemption is being litigated in California and other jurisdictions.

H. Required Study of the effects of Credit Scores and Credit-Based Insurance Scores.

The FTC and FRB are required to conduct a study and to submit a detailed report to Congress by December 4, 2005. The report is to be submitted to the House Committee on Financial Services and to the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs. The Study concerns the following topics: (1) the effects of using credit scores and credit-based insurance scores on the availability and affordability of financial products/services (credit cards, mortgages, auto loans, property/casualty insurance); (2) the statistical relationship between credit scores and credit based insurance scores and the quantifiable risks/actual loss experiences by businesses; (3) the impact of using credit scoring on potential differential treatment of protected classes under ECOA including the effects of geography, income, ethnicity, race, color, religion, national origin, age, sex, marital status and creed; and (4) the extent to which businesses use credit scoring systems. (Section 214 of the Act).

I. Regulated Disposal of Consumer Report Information.

The Act requires the FTC, SEC and federal banking agencies to prescribe regulations regarding the proper disposal of consumer reports and similar information. (Section 215(a) of the Act (adding Section 528 to the FCRA)). See www.ftc.gov.

J. Notice of “Negative Information”.

Any financial institution that furnishes “negative information” to a CRA must provide notice to the consumer within 30 days of communicating to the CRA. “Negative information” is defined broadly to include information concerning a customer’s delinquencies, late payments, insolvency or other form of default. A model disclosure form is being developed.

K. Rules Governing the Accuracy of Consumer Report Data.

Several provisions of the FACT Act are designed to strengthen the accuracy of consumer reports and the process for correcting errors. The provisions will assist consumers needing to correct their reports and place increased duties for correcting inaccuracies on the CRAs and on the financial institutions that report data (“furnishers”).

1. Risk-Based Pricing Notice. If there is an extension of credit on terms that are “materially less favorable” than the most favorable terms “available to a substantial portion of consumers from or through that creditor,” then the creditor must provide the consumer a risk based pricing notice that the individual’s consumer report was the reason. The notice can be oral, written or electronic. Because risk-based pricing has lessened the number of credit denials (and the corresponding adverse action notice) the FACT Act addresses this and requires a notice where any loan is approved with a higher interest rate or less favorable terms. The FRB and the FTC have issued regulations with the specific requirements for the notices, with clarification of the key terms used in the statutory trigger, and explaining exceptions to the notice requirement. The Regs also include a model notice and details on the timing for providing such notices. See www.ftc.gov.

The Risk Based Pricing Rules are specifically excluded from the private right of action provisions of the Act. (Section 311 of the Act (amending Section 615(h) of FCRA)). The FTC has exclusive enforcement authority.

2. Furnisher Rules Governing the Accuracy and Integrity of Information Supplied to CRAs. The FTC and federal banking agencies have formulated guidelines and regulations designed to improve the accuracy and integrity of information reported to CRAs by “furnishers.” The Act changes the standard for when furnishers may provide information to CRAs. They are allowed to provide the information unless they have “reasonable cause to believe that the information is inaccurate.” Furnishers shall be required to reinvestigate the accuracy of some information if a consumer requests directly. The procedures are changed for providing notice of delinquent accounts placed for collection and for reporting the date of the delinquencies. CRAs must also inform the furnishers of information when reinvestigation identifies incomplete, inaccurate or unverified data.

The civil liability provisions of FCRA do not apply to these new guidelines for furnishers of information. (See Sections 312 and 314(b) of the Act (amending FCRA Sections 523 and 523(b)).

3. FTC Compilation of CRA Accuracy Complaints. The FTC is to compile all complaints it receives regarding incomplete or inaccurate record keeping by CRAs. The FTC will send the compiled data to the CRAs. The CRAs must review the complaints and determine whether the legal obligations have been satisfied. The CRAs must provide regular reports to the FTC regarding their determinations in reviewing consumer complaints of inaccuracies. The FTC must submit an annual report to Congress regarding these oversight procedures. (Section 313 of the Act amending Section 511 of FCRA)).
4. Address Reconciliation. The Act requires nationwide CRAs to notify consumers if they receive a request for a consumer report that includes an address for the consumer that “substantially differs” from the address in the consumer file. Regulations are required including details concerning ways that the user can form a reasonable belief as to the true identity of the person to whom the consumer report pertains and a means to reconcile the address issue. (Section 315 of the Act adding FCRA Section 605(h)).

5. Notice of Dispute to Reseller. Resellers of credit reports are typically not covered by FCRA. However, the FACT Act requires resellers (upon notice of a dispute from a consumer) to determine whether the disputed information is incomplete or inaccurate as a result of an act or omission of the reseller. If it is inaccurate due to reseller error, then the information must be corrected or deleted in 20 days. If no correction is made, then the reseller still must convey notice of the dispute to each CRA that provided the information to the reseller. A CRA which has reinvestigated the information is also required to notify the reseller who must forward the information to the consumer. (Section 316 of the Act amending FCRA Section 611).
 6. FTC Studies of Inaccurate Consumer Reports and FCRA Issues. The FTC is required by the FACT Act to conduct an ongoing study of the accuracy and completeness of consumer report data by the CRAs. The FTC is charged to recommend methods for improving accuracy and completeness. The FTC's interim report to Congress was published in December, 2004 and can be reviewed at www.ftc.gov. Similar reports are due every two years until 2012. (Section 319 of the Act). The FTC is also directed to review and to report on the efficiency of increasing the number of points of identifying information that CRAs must match and/on requiring notification to consumers when negative information has been added to their credit reports. The FTC is likewise to study the effects of requiring that adverse actions trigger an obligation to provide the consumer with a copy of the same credit report relied upon in taking the adverse action. Finally, the FTC is also to study common financial transactions not typically reported to CRAs which are useful to credit worthiness determinations, and to recommend actions to encourage the voluntary reporting of such pertinent/helpful data. (Section 318 of the Act).
- L. Medical Information: Use and Sharing Rules. The FACT Act increases the protections against disclosure of medical information.
1. Restrictions on Consumer Reports Containing Medical Information. Before providing a consumer report with medical information, the CRA must obtain consent from the consumer to furnish the report if it relates to an insurance transaction. The CRA must also ensure that the medical information is relevant to the employment or credit transaction and ensure that the consumer has provided specific written consent. The CRA must also ensure that the medical information pertains solely to transactions, accounts, or balances relating to debts arising out of medical services. (Section 411 of the Act (amending Section 604(g)(7) of FCRA)).
 2. Other Protections. The Act bars a creditor from obtaining or using medical information in connection with any determination of a consumer's eligibility for credit. The federal banking agencies have issued precise regulations restricting the use of medical information for inappropriate purposes. (Section 411(a) of the Act (amending Section 604(g) of the FCRA)). See www.ftc.gov.

3. Restriction on Sharing Medical Information. The Act includes within the definition of a “consumer report” medical information disclosed among affiliates (thus triggering notice and opt-out protections). This includes shared medical information, lists of payment transactions for medical products/services, as well as any aggregate list of identified consumers who purchased medical products or services. (Section 411(b) of the Act (amending FCRA Section 603(d) 603(i))).
4. Exclusion of Data on Medical Information Furnishers from Consumer Reports. By March 4, 2005, the information containing the name, address and telephone number of any medical information furnishers must be excluded from consumer reports. An exceptions exists if the information is reported in such a way that it is not identifiable and permits no inference of the types of medical services provided; or the report is to an insurance company for the business of insurance (other than property and casualty insurance). (Section 412(b) of Act (amending FCRA Section 623(a) and 605(a)).

M. Continued and Permanent Preemption of State Laws in Specific Areas.

Preemption is effective as of December 31, 2003. The FACT Act continues permanently the state law preemption (past the old sunset date of January 1, 2004) in the following seven areas:

- (1) sharing of information with affiliates;
- (2) prescreening activities;
- (3) duties placed on furnishers of credit information;
- (4) duties of a person taking adverse action;
- (5) CRA action concerning the resolution of disputed report data;
- (6) requirements concerning a consumer report; and
- (7) the summary of rights and notice to be provided to consumers.

The FACT ACT also adds the following new areas of exclusive federal regulation and preemption of state laws:

- (1) truncation of credit and debit card regulations;
- (2) fraud alerts and active duty alerts;
- (3) blocking rules regarding information resulting from identity theft;
- (4) the masking of social security numbers;
- (5) rules prescribing free consumer reports;
- (6) disclosure of credit score duties;
- (7) procedures for identification of possible identity theft situations;
- (8) prohibitions on transferring debt caused by identity theft;
- (9) debt collector communications regarding identity theft;
- (10) coordination of identity theft complaint investigations;

THE FAIR CREDIT REPORTING ACT

As a public service, the staff of the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has prepared the following complete text of the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA), 15 U.S.C. § 1681 et seq. Although staff generally followed the format of the U.S. Code as published by the Government Printing Office, the format of this text does differ in minor ways from the Code (and from West's U.S. Code Annotated). For example, this version uses FCRA section numbers (§§ 601-625) in the headings. (The relevant U.S. Code citation is included with each section heading and each reference to the FCRA in the text.) Although the staff has made every effort to transcribe the statutory material accurately, this compendium is intended only as a convenience for the public and not a substitute for the text in the U. S. Code. This document was posted on July 30, 2004.

This version of the FCRA includes the amendments to the FCRA set forth in the Consumer Credit Reporting Reform Act of 1996 (Public Law 104-208, the Omnibus Consolidated Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 1997, Title II, Subtitle D, Chapter 1), Section 311 of the Intelligence Authorization for Fiscal Year 1998 (Public Law 105-107), the Consumer Reporting Employment Clarification Act of 1998 (Public Law 105-347), Section 506 of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (Public Law 106-102), Sections 358(g) and 505(c) of the Uniting and Strengthening America by Providing Appropriate Tools Required to Intercept and Obstruct Terrorism Act of 2001 (USA PATRIOT Act) (Public Law 107-56), and the Fair and Accurate Credit Transactions Act of 2003 (FACT Act) (Public Law 108-159).

The provisions added to the FCRA by the FACT Act will become effective at different times. In some cases, the provision includes its own effective date. In other cases, the FACT Act provides that the effective dates be prescribed by the FTC and Federal Reserve Board. See 16 CFR Part 602. (69 Fed. Reg. 6526; February 11, 2004) (69 Fed. Reg. 29061; May 20, 2004).

§ 601. Short title

This title may be cited as the “Fair Credit Reporting Act”.

§ 602. Congressional findings and statement of purpose [15 U.S.C. § 1681]

(a) Accuracy and fairness of credit reporting. The Congress makes the following findings:

- (1) The banking system is dependent upon fair and accurate credit reporting. Inaccurate credit reports directly impair the efficiency of the banking system, and unfair credit reporting methods undermine the public confidence which is essential to the continued functioning of the banking system.
- (2) An elaborate mechanism has been developed for investigating and evaluating the credit worthiness, credit standing, credit capacity, character, and general reputation of consumers.
- (3) Consumer reporting agencies have assumed a vital role in assembling and evaluating consumer credit and other information on consumers.
- (4) There is a need to insure that consumer reporting agencies exercise their grave responsibilities with fairness, impartiality, and a respect for the consumer's right to privacy.

(b) Reasonable procedures. It is the purpose of this title to require that consumer reporting agencies adopt reasonable procedures for meeting the needs of commerce for consumer credit, personnel, insurance, and other information in a manner which is fair and equitable to the consumer, with regard to the confidentiality, accuracy, relevancy, and proper utilization of such information in accordance with the requirements of this title.

- (B) any authorization or approval of a specific extension of credit directly or indirectly by the issuer of a credit card or similar device;
- (C) any report in which a person who has been requested by a third party to make a specific extension of credit directly or indirectly to a consumer conveys his or her decision with respect to such request, if the third party advises the consumer of the name and address of the person to whom the request was made, and such person makes the disclosures to the consumer required under section 615 [§ 1681m]; or

(i) In general. No prospective user of a consumer report that includes an initial fraud alert or an active duty alert in accordance with this section may establish a new credit plan or extension of credit, other than under an open-end credit plan (as defined in section 103(i)), in the name of the consumer, or issue an additional card on an existing credit account requested by a consumer, or grant any increase in credit limit on an existing credit account requested by a consumer, unless the user utilizes reasonable policies and procedures to form a reasonable belief that the user knows the identity of the person making the request.

(ii) Verification. If a consumer requesting the alert has specified a telephone number to be used for identity verification purposes, before authorizing any new credit plan or extension described in clause (i) in the name of such consumer, a user of such consumer report shall contact the consumer using that telephone number or take reasonable steps to verify the consumer's identity and confirm that the application for a new credit plan is not the result of identity theft.

- (3) Significance of block. For purposes of this subsection, if a consumer reporting agency rescinds a block, the presence of information in the file of a consumer prior to the blocking of such information is not evidence of whether the consumer knew or should have known that the consumer obtained possession of any goods, services, or money as a result of the block.

(d) Exception for Resellers

- (1) No reseller file. This section shall not apply to a consumer reporting agency, if the consumer reporting agency--

 - (i) means a numerical value or a categorization derived from a statistical tool or modeling system used by a person who makes or arranges a loan to predict the likelihood of certain credit behaviors, including default (and the numerical value or the categorization derived from such analysis may also be referred to as a “risk predictor” or “risk score”); and
 - (ii) does not include--
 - (I) any mortgage score or rating of an automated underwriting system that considers one or more factors in addition to credit information, including the loan to value ratio, the amount of down payment, or the financial assets of a consumer; or
 - (II) any other elements of the underwriting process or underwriting decision.
- (B) The term “key factors” means all relevant elements or reasons adversely affecting the credit score for the particular individual, listed in the order of their importance based on their effect on the credit score.

(3) Timeframe and manner of disclosure. The information required by this subsection shall be provided in the same timeframe and manner as the information described in subsection (a).

 - (B) develop scores that assist credit providers in understanding the general credit behavior of a consumer and predicting the future credit behavior of the consumer.
- (5) Applicability to credit scores developed by another person.
- (A) In general. This subsection shall not be construed to require a consumer reporting agency that distributes credit scores developed by another person or entity to provide a further explanation of them, or to process a dispute arising pursuant to section 611, except that the consumer reporting agency shall provide the consumer with the name and address and website for contacting the person or entity who developed the score or developed the methodology of the score.
 - (B) Exception. This paragraph shall not apply to a consumer reporting agency that develops or modifies scores that are developed by another person or entity.

- (7) Compliance in certain cases. In complying with this subsection, a consumer reporting agency shall--
- (A) supply the consumer with a credit score that is derived from a credit scoring model that is widely distributed to users by that consumer reporting agency in connection with residential real property loans or with a credit score that assists the consumer in understanding the credit scoring assessment of the credit behavior of the consumer and predictions about the future credit behavior of the consumer; and
 - (B) a statement indicating that the information and credit scoring model may be different than that used by the lender.
- (8) Fair and reasonable fee. A consumer reporting agency may charge a fair and reasonable fee, as determined by the Commission, for providing the information required under this subsection.
- (9) Use of enquiries as a key factor. If a key factor that adversely affects the credit score of a consumer consists of the number of enquiries made with respect to a consumer report, that factor shall be included in the disclosure pursuant to paragraph (1)(C) without regard to the numerical limitation in such paragraph.
- (g) Disclosure of Credit Scores by Certain Mortgage Lenders

(1) In general. Any person who makes or arranges loans and who uses a consumer credit score, as defined in subsection (f), in connection with an application initiated or sought by a consumer for a closed end loan or the establishment of an open end loan for a consumer purpose that is secured by 1 to 4 units of residential real property (hereafter in this subsection referred to as the “lender”) shall provide the following to the consumer as soon as reasonably practicable:

(A) Information Required under Subsection (f)

- (i) In general. A copy of the information identified in subsection (f) that was obtained from a consumer reporting agency or was developed and used by the user of the information.
- (ii) Notice under subparagraph (D). In addition to the information provided to it by a third party that provided the credit score or scores, a lender is only required to provide the notice contained in subparagraph (D).

(B) Disclosures in Case of Automated Underwriting System

- (i) In general. If a person that is subject to this subsection uses an automated underwriting system to underwrite a loan, that person may satisfy the obligation to provide a credit score by disclosing a credit score and associated key factors supplied by a consumer reporting agency.
- (ii) Numerical credit score. However, if a numerical credit score is generated by an automated underwriting system used by an enterprise, and that score is disclosed to the person, the score shall be disclosed to the consumer consistent with subparagraph (C).
- (iii) Enterprise defined. For purposes of this subparagraph, the term “enterprise” has the same meaning as in paragraph (6) of section 1303 of the Federal Housing Enterprises Financial Safety and Soundness Act of 1992.

(C) Disclosures of credit scores not obtained from a consumer reporting agency. A person that is subject to the provisions of this subsection and that uses a credit score, other than a credit score provided by a consumer reporting agency, may satisfy the obligation to provide a credit score by disclosing a credit score and associated key factors supplied by a consumer reporting agency.

(D) Notice to home loan applicants. A copy of the following notice, which shall include the name, address, and telephone number of each consumer reporting agency providing a credit score that was used:

“Notice To The Home Loan Applicant

“In connection with your application for a home loan, the lender must disclose to you the score that a consumer reporting agency distributed to users and the lender used in connection with your home loan, and the key factors affecting your credit scores.

“The credit score is a computer generated summary calculated at the time of the request and based on information that a consumer reporting agency or lender has on file. The scores are based on data about your credit history and payment patterns. Credit scores are important because they are used to assist the lender in determining whether you will obtain a loan. They may also be used to determine what interest rate you may be offered on the mortgage. Credit scores can change over time, depending on your conduct, how your credit history and payment patterns change, and how credit scoring technologies change.

“Because the score is based on information in your credit history, it is very important that you review the credit-related information that is being furnished to make sure it is accurate. Credit records may vary from one company to another.

“If you have questions about your credit score or the credit information that is furnished to you, contact the consumer reporting agency at the address and telephone number provided with this notice, or contact the lender, if the lender developed or generated the credit score. The consumer reporting agency plays no part in the decision to take any action on the loan application and is unable to provide you with specific reasons for the decision on a loan application.

“If you have questions concerning the terms of the loan, contact the lender.”

(E) Actions not required under this subsection. This subsection shall not require any person to—

- (i) explain the information provided pursuant to subsection (f);
- (ii) disclose any information other than a credit score or key factors, as defined in subsection (f);
- (iii) disclose any credit score or related information obtained by the user after a loan has closed;
- (iv) provide more than 1 disclosure per loan transaction; or
- (v) provide the disclosure required by this subsection when another person has made the disclosure to the consumer for that loan transaction.

(F) No Obligation for Content

- (i) In general. The obligation of any person pursuant to this subsection shall be limited solely to providing a copy of the information that was received from the consumer reporting agency.
- (ii) Limit on liability. No person has liability under this subsection for the content of that information or for the omission of any information within the report provided by the consumer reporting agency.

- (G) Person defined as excluding enterprise. As used in this subsection, the term “person” does not include an enterprise (as defined in paragraph (6) of section 1303 of the Federal Housing Enterprises Financial Safety and Soundness Act of 1992).

(2) Prohibition on Disclosure Clauses Null and Void

- (A) In general. Any provision in a contract that prohibits the disclosure of a credit score by a person who makes or arranges loans or a consumer reporting agency is void.
- (B) No liability for disclosure under this subsection- A lender shall not have liability under any contractual provision for disclosure of a credit score pursuant to this subsection.

A consumer reporting agency may require the consumer to furnish a written statement granting permission to the consumer reporting agency to discuss the consumer's file in such person's presence.
- (e) Limitation of liability. Except as provided in sections 616 and 617 [§§ 1681n and 1681o] of this title, no consumer may bring any action or proceeding in the nature of defamation, invasion of privacy, or negligence with respect to the reporting of information against any consumer reporting agency, any user of information, or any person who furnishes information to a consumer reporting agency, based on information disclosed pursuant to section 609, 610, or 615 [§§ 1681g, 1681h, or 1681m] of this title or based on information disclosed by a user of a consumer report to or for a consumer against whom the user has taken adverse action, based in whole or in part on the report, except as to false information furnished with malice or willful intent to injure such consumer.

(C) Procedures to prevent reappearance. A consumer reporting agency shall maintain reasonable procedures designed to prevent the reappearance in a consumer's file, and in consumer reports on the consumer, of information that is deleted pursuant to this paragraph (other than information that is reinserted in accordance with subparagraph (B)(i)).

- (D) Automated reinvestigation system. Any consumer reporting agency that compiles and maintains files on consumers on a nationwide basis shall implement an automated system through which furnishers of information to that consumer reporting agency may report the results of a reinvestigation that finds incomplete or inaccurate information in a consumer's file to other such consumer reporting agencies.

(6) Notice of Results of Reinvestigation

For purposes of this paragraph, items of public record relating to arrests, indictments, convictions, suits, tax liens, and outstanding judgments shall be considered up to date if the current public record status of the item at the time of the report is reported.
- (b) Exemption for national security investigations. Subsection (a) does not apply in the case of an agency or department of the United States Government that seeks to obtain and use a consumer report for employment purposes, if the head of the agency or department makes a written finding as prescribed under section 604(b)(4)(A).

§ 614. Restrictions on investigative consumer reports [15 U.S.C. § 1681l]

Whenever a consumer reporting agency prepares an investigative consumer report, no adverse information in the consumer report (other than information which is a matter of public record) may be included in a subsequent consumer report unless such adverse information has been verified in the process of making such subsequent consumer report, or the adverse information was received within the three-month period preceding the date the subsequent report is furnished.

§ 615. Requirements on users of consumer reports [15 U.S.C. § 1681m]

- (a) Duties of users taking adverse actions on the basis of information contained in consumer reports. If any person takes any adverse action with respect to any consumer that is based in whole or in part on any information contained in a consumer report, the person shall
- (1) provide oral, written, or electronic notice of the adverse action to the consumer;
 - (2) provide to the consumer orally, in writing, or electronically

- (B) a statement that the consumer reporting agency did not make the decision to take the adverse action and is unable to provide the consumer the specific reasons why the adverse action was taken; and
- (3) provide to the consumer an oral, written, or electronic notice of the consumer's right
 - (A) to obtain, under section 612 [§ 1681j], a free copy of a consumer report on the consumer from the consumer reporting agency referred to in paragraph (2), which notice shall include an indication of the 60-day period under that section for obtaining such a copy; and
 - (B) to dispute, under section 611 [§ 1681i], with a consumer reporting agency the accuracy or completeness of any information in a consumer report furnished by the agency.

(b) Adverse Action Based on Information Obtained from Third Parties Other than Consumer Reporting Agencies

- (1) In general. Whenever credit for personal, family, or household purposes involving a consumer is denied or the charge for such credit is increased either wholly or partly because of information obtained from a person other than a consumer reporting agency bearing upon the consumer's credit worthiness, credit standing, credit capacity, character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living, the user of such information shall, within a reasonable period of time, upon the consumer's written request for the reasons for such adverse action received within sixty days after learning of such adverse action, disclose the nature of the information to the consumer. The user of such information shall clearly and accurately disclose to the consumer his right to make such written request at the time such adverse action is communicated to the consumer.

(2) Duties of Person Taking Certain Actions Based on Information Provided by Affiliate

- (A) Duties, generally. If a person takes an action described in subparagraph (B) with respect to a consumer, based in whole or in part on information described in subparagraph (C), the person shall
 - (i) notify the consumer of the action, including a statement that the consumer may obtain the information in accordance with clause (ii); and
 - (ii) upon a written request from the consumer received within 60 days after transmittal of the notice required by clause (I), disclose to the consumer the nature of the information upon which the action is based by not later than 30 days after receipt of the request.
- (B) Action described. An action referred to in subparagraph (A) is an adverse action described in section 603(k)(1)(A) [§ 1681a], taken in connection with a transaction initiated by the consumer, or any adverse action described in clause (i) or (ii) of section 603(k)(1)(B) [§ 1681a].

- (C) Information described. Information referred to in subparagraph (A)
- (i) except as provided in clause (ii), is information that
 - (I) is furnished to the person taking the action by a person related by common ownership or affiliated by common corporate control to the person taking the action; and
 - (II) bears on the credit worthiness, credit standing, credit capacity, character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living of the consumer; and
 - (ii) does not include
 - (I) information solely as to transactions or experiences between the consumer and the person furnishing the information; or
 - (II) information in a consumer report.
- (c) Reasonable procedures to assure compliance. No person shall be held liable for any violation of this section if he shows by a preponderance of the evidence that at the time of the alleged violation he maintained reasonable procedures to assure compliance with the provisions of this section.
- (d) Duties of Users Making Written Credit or Insurance Solicitations on the Basis of Information Contained in Consumer Files
- (1) In general. Any person who uses a consumer report on any consumer in connection with any credit or insurance transaction that is not initiated by the consumer, that is provided to that person under section 604(c)(1)(B) [§ 1681b], shall provide with each written solicitation made to the consumer regarding the transaction a clear and conspicuous statement that
- (A) information contained in the consumer's consumer report was used in connection with the transaction;
 - (B) the consumer received the offer of credit or insurance because the consumer satisfied the criteria for credit worthiness or insurability under which the consumer was selected for the offer;
 - (C) if applicable, the credit or insurance may not be extended if, after the consumer responds to the offer, the consumer does not meet the criteria used to select the consumer for the offer or any applicable criteria bearing on credit worthiness or insurability or does not furnish any required collateral;
 - (D) the consumer has a right to prohibit information contained in the consumer's file with any consumer reporting agency from being used in connection with any credit or insurance transaction that is not initiated by the consumer; and

- (E) the consumer may exercise the right referred to in subparagraph (D) by notifying a notification system established under section 604(e) [§ 1681b].

(2) Disclosure of address and telephone number; format. A statement under paragraph (1) shall--

- (A) include the address and toll-free telephone number of the appropriate notification system established under section 604(e); and
- (B) be presented in such format and in such type size and manner as to be simple and easy to understand, as established by the Commission, by rule, in consultation with the Federal banking agencies and the National Credit Union Administration.

(3) Maintaining criteria on file. A person who makes an offer of credit or insurance to a consumer under a credit or insurance transaction described in paragraph (1) shall maintain on file the criteria used to select the consumer to receive the offer, all criteria bearing on credit worthiness or insurability, as applicable, that are the basis for determining whether or not to extend credit or insurance pursuant to the offer, and any requirement for the furnishing of collateral as a condition of the extension of credit or insurance, until the expiration of the 3-year period beginning on the date on which the offer is made to the consumer.

(4) Authority of federal agencies regarding unfair or deceptive acts or practices not affected. This section is not intended to affect the authority of any Federal or State agency to enforce a prohibition against unfair or deceptive acts or practices, including the making of false or misleading statements in connection with a credit or insurance transaction that is not initiated by the consumer.

(e) Red Flag Guidelines and Regulations Required

(1) Guidelines. The Federal banking agencies, the National Credit Union Administration, and the Commission shall jointly, with respect to the entities that are subject to their respective enforcement authority under section 621--

- (A) establish and maintain guidelines for use by each financial institution and each creditor regarding identity theft with respect to account holders at, or customers of, such entities, and update such guidelines as often as necessary;
- (B) prescribe regulations requiring each financial institution and each creditor to establish reasonable policies and procedures for implementing the guidelines established pursuant to subparagraph (A), to identify possible risks to account holders or customers or to the safety and soundness of the institution or customers; and

- (C) prescribe regulations applicable to card issuers to ensure that, if a card issuer receives notification of a change of address for an existing account, and within a short period of time (during at least the first 30 days after such notification is received) receives a request for an additional or replacement card for the same account, the card issuer may not issue the additional or replacement card, unless the card issuer, in accordance with reasonable policies and procedures--
 - (i) notifies the cardholder of the request at the former address of the cardholder and provides to the cardholder a means of promptly reporting incorrect address changes;
 - (ii) notifies the cardholder of the request by such other means of communication as the cardholder and the card issuer previously agreed to; or
 - (iii) uses other means of assessing the validity of the change of address, in accordance with reasonable policies and procedures established by the card issuer in accordance with the regulations prescribed under subparagraph (B).

(2) Criteria

- (A) In general. In developing the guidelines required by paragraph (1)(A), the agencies described in paragraph (1) shall identify patterns, practices, and specific forms of activity that indicate the possible existence of identity theft.
 - (B) Inactive accounts. In developing the guidelines required by paragraph (1)(A), the agencies described in paragraph (1) shall consider including reasonable guidelines providing that when a transaction occurs with respect to a credit or deposit account that has been inactive for more than 2 years, the creditor or financial institution shall follow reasonable policies and procedures that provide for notice to be given to a consumer in a manner reasonably designed to reduce the likelihood of identity theft with respect to such account.
- (3) Consistency with verification requirements. Guidelines established pursuant to paragraph (1) shall not be inconsistent with the policies and procedures required under section 5318(l) of title 31, United States Code.

(f) Prohibition on Sale or Transfer of Debt Caused by Identity Theft

- (1) In general. No person shall sell, transfer for consideration, or place for collection a debt that such person has been notified under section 605B has resulted from identity theft.
- (2) Applicability. The prohibitions of this subsection shall apply to all persons collecting a debt described in paragraph (1) after the date of a notification under paragraph (1).

(3) Rule of construction. Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to prohibit--

- (B) the securitization of a debt or the pledging of a portfolio of debt as collateral in connection with a borrowing; or
- (C) the transfer of debt as a result of a merger, acquisition, purchase and assumption transaction, or transfer of substantially all of the assets of an entity.

(g) Debt collector communications concerning identity theft. If a person acting as a debt collector (as that term is defined in title VIII) on behalf of a third party that is a creditor or other user of a consumer report is notified that any information relating to a debt that the person is attempting to collect may be fraudulent or may be the result of identity theft, that person shall--

- (1) notify the third party that the information may be fraudulent or may be the result of identity theft; and
- (2) upon request of the consumer to whom the debt purportedly relates, provide to the consumer all information to which the consumer would otherwise be entitled if the consumer were not a victim of identity theft, but wished to dispute the debt under provisions of law applicable to that person.

(h) Duties of Users in Certain Credit Transactions

(1) In general. Subject to rules prescribed as provided in paragraph (6), if any person uses a consumer report in connection with an application for, or a grant, extension, or other provision of, credit on material terms that are materially less favorable than the most favorable terms available to a substantial proportion of consumers from or through that person, based in whole or in part on a consumer report, the person shall provide an oral, written, or electronic notice to the consumer in the form and manner required by regulations prescribed in accordance with this subsection.

(2) Timing. The notice required under paragraph (1) may be provided at the time of an application for, or a grant, extension, or other provision of, credit or the time of communication of an approval of an application for, or grant, extension, or other provision of, credit, except as provided in the regulations prescribed under paragraph (6).

(3) Exceptions. No notice shall be required from a person under this subsection if--

- (A) the consumer applied for specific material terms and was granted those terms, unless those terms were initially specified by the person after the transaction was initiated by the consumer and after the person obtained a consumer report; or

- (B) the person has provided or will provide a notice to the consumer under subsection (a) in connection with the transaction.
- (4) Other notice not sufficient. A person that is required to provide a notice under subsection (a) cannot meet that requirement by providing a notice under this subsection.
- (5) Content and delivery of notice. A notice under this subsection shall, at a minimum—
 - (A) include a statement informing the consumer that the terms offered to the consumer are set based on information from a consumer report;
 - (B) identify the consumer reporting agency furnishing the report;
 - (C) include a statement informing the consumer that the consumer may obtain a copy of a consumer report from that consumer reporting agency without charge; and
 - (D) include the contact information specified by that consumer reporting agency for obtaining such consumer reports (including a toll-free telephone number established by the agency in the case of a consumer reporting agency described in section 603(p)).

(6) Rulemaking

- (A) Rules required. The Commission and the Board shall jointly prescribe rules.
- (B) Content. Rules required by subparagraph (A) shall address, but are not limited to—

 - (ii) clarification of the meaning of terms used in this subsection, including what credit terms are material, and when credit terms are materially less favorable;
 - (iii) exceptions to the notice requirement under this subsection for classes of persons or transactions regarding which the agencies determine that notice would not significantly benefit consumers;
 - (iv) a model notice that may be used to comply with this subsection; and
 - (v) the timing of the notice required under paragraph (1), including the circumstances under which the notice must be provided after the terms offered to the consumer were set based on information from a consumer report.

(7) Compliance. A person shall not be liable for failure to perform the duties required by this section if, at the time of the failure, the person maintained reasonable policies and procedures to comply with this section.

(8) Enforcement

(A) No civil actions. Sections 616 and 617 shall not apply to any failure by any person to comply with this section.

(B) Administrative enforcement. This section shall be enforced exclusively under section 621 by the Federal agencies and officials identified in that section.

(b) Civil liability for knowing noncompliance. Any person who obtains a consumer report from a consumer reporting agency under false pretenses or knowingly without a permissible purpose shall be liable to the consumer reporting agency for actual damages sustained by the consumer reporting agency or $1,000, whichever is greater.

(c) Attorney's fees. Upon a finding by the court that an unsuccessful pleading, motion, or other paper filed in connection with an action under this section was filed in bad faith or for purposes of harassment, the court shall award to the prevailing party attorney's fees reasonable in relation to the work expended in responding to the pleading, motion, or other paper.

§ 617. Civil liability for negligent noncompliance [15 U.S.C. § 1681o]

(a) In general. Any person who is negligent in failing to comply with any requirement imposed under this title with respect to any consumer is liable to that consumer in an amount equal to the sum of

§ 618. Jurisdiction of courts; limitation of actions [15 U.S.C. § 1681p]

An action to enforce any liability created under this title may be brought in any appropriate United States district court, without regard to the amount in controversy, or in any other court of competent jurisdiction, not later than the earlier of (1) 2 years after the date of discovery by the plaintiff of the violation that is the basis for such liability; or (2) 5 years after the date on which the violation that is the basis for such liability occurs.

§ 619. Obtaining information under false pretenses [15 U.S.C. § 1681q]

§ 621. Administrative enforcement [15 U.S.C. § 1681s]

- (a) (1) Enforcement by Federal Trade Commission. Compliance with the requirements imposed under this title shall be enforced under the Federal Trade Commission Act [15 U.S.C. §§ 41 et seq.] by the Federal Trade Commission with respect to consumer reporting agencies and all other persons subject thereto, except to the extent that enforcement of the requirements imposed under this title is specifically committed to some other government agency under subsection (b) hereof. For the purpose of the exercise by the Federal Trade Commission of its functions and powers under the Federal Trade Commission Act, a violation of any requirement or prohibition imposed under this title shall constitute an unfair or deceptive act or practice in commerce in violation of section 5(a) of the Federal Trade Commission Act [15 U.S.C. § 45(a)] and shall be subject to enforcement by the Federal Trade Commission under section 5(b) thereof [15 U.S.C. § 45(b)] with respect to any consumer reporting agency or person subject to enforcement by the Federal Trade Commission pursuant to this subsection, irrespective of whether that person is engaged in commerce or meets any other jurisdictional tests in the Federal Trade Commission Act. The Federal Trade Commission shall have such procedural, investigative, and enforcement powers, including the power to issue procedural rules in enforcing compliance with the requirements imposed under this title and to require the filing of reports, the production of documents, and the appearance of witnesses as though the applicable terms and conditions of the Federal Trade Commission Act were part of this title. Any person violating any of the provisions of this title shall be subject to the penalties and entitled to the privileges and immunities provided in the Federal Trade Commission Act as though the applicable terms and provisions thereof were part of this title.

(2) (A) In the event of a knowing violation, which constitutes a pattern or practice of violations of this title, the Commission may commence a civil action to recover a civil penalty in a district court of the United States against any person that violates this title. In such action, such person shall be liable for a civil penalty of not more than $2,500 per violation.

(B) In determining the amount of a civil penalty under subparagraph (A), the court shall take into account the degree of culpability, any history of prior such conduct, ability to pay, effect on ability to continue to do business, and such other matters as justice may require.

(3) Notwithstanding paragraph (2), a court may not impose any civil penalty on a person for a violation of section 623(a)(1) [§ 1681s-2] unless the person has been enjoined from committing the violation, or ordered not to commit the violation, in an action or proceeding brought by or on behalf of the Federal Trade Commission, and has violated the injunction or order, and the court may not impose any civil penalty for any violation occurring before the date of the violation of the injunction or order.

(b) Enforcement by other agencies. Compliance with the requirements imposed under this title with respect to consumer reporting agencies, persons who use consumer reports from such agencies, persons who furnish information to such agencies, and users of information that are subject to subsection (d) of section 615 [§ 1681m] shall be enforced under

(1) section 8 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act [12 U.S.C. § 1818], in the case of

(A) national banks, and Federal branches and Federal agencies of foreign banks, by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency;

(B) member banks of the Federal Reserve System (other than national banks), branches and agencies of foreign banks (other than Federal branches, Federal agencies, and insured State branches of foreign banks), commercial lending companies owned or controlled by foreign banks, and organizations operating under section 25 or 25A of the Federal Reserve Act [12 U.S.C. §§ 601 et seq., §§ 611 et seq], by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System; and

- (3) the Federal Credit Union Act [12 U.S.C. §§ 1751 et seq.], by the Administrator of the National Credit Union Administration [National Credit Union Administration Board] with respect to any Federal credit union;
- (4) subtitle IV of title 49 [49 U.S.C. §§ 10101 et seq.], by the Secretary of Transportation, with respect to all carriers subject to the jurisdiction of the Surface Transportation Board;
- (5) the Federal Aviation Act of 1958 [49 U.S.C. Appx §§ 1301 et seq.], by the Secretary of Transportation with respect to any air carrier or foreign air carrier subject to that Act [49 U.S.C. Appx §§ 1301 et seq.]; and
- (6) the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921 [7 U.S.C. §§ 181 et seq.] (except as provided in section 406 of that Act [7 U.S.C. §§ 226 and 227]), by the Secretary of Agriculture with respect to any activities subject to that Act.

The terms used in paragraph (1) that are not defined in this title or otherwise defined in section 3(s) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. §1813(s)) shall have the meaning given to them in section 1(b) of the International Banking Act of 1978 (12 U.S.C. § 3101).

(c) State Action for Violations

- (1) Authority of states. In addition to such other remedies as are provided under State law, if the chief law enforcement officer of a State, or an official or agency designated by a State, has reason to believe that any person has violated or is violating this title, the State
 - (A) may bring an action to enjoin such violation in any appropriate United States district court or in any other court of competent jurisdiction;
 - (B) subject to paragraph (5), may bring an action on behalf of the residents of the State to recover
 - (i) damages for which the person is liable to such residents under sections 616 and 617 [§§ 1681n and 1681o] as a result of the violation;
 - (ii) in the case of a violation described in any of paragraphs (1) through (3) of section 623(c), damages for which the person would, but for section 623(c) [§ 1681s-2], be liable to such residents as a result of the violation; or
 - (iii) damages of not more than $1,000 for each willful or negligent violation; and

- (C) in the case of any successful action under subparagraph (A) or (B), shall be awarded the costs of the action and reasonable attorney fees as determined by the court.
- (2) Rights of federal regulators. The State shall serve prior written notice of any action under paragraph (1) upon the Federal Trade Commission or the appropriate Federal regulator determined under subsection (b) and provide the Commission or appropriate Federal regulator with a copy of its complaint, except in any case in which such prior notice is not feasible, in which case the State shall serve such notice immediately upon instituting such action. The Federal Trade Commission or appropriate Federal regulator shall have the right
- (A) to intervene in the action;
 - (B) upon so intervening, to be heard on all matters arising therein;
 - (C) to remove the action to the appropriate United States district court; and
 - (D) to file petitions for appeal.
- (3) Investigatory powers. For purposes of bringing any action under this subsection, nothing in this subsection shall prevent the chief law enforcement officer, or an official or agency designated by a State, from exercising the powers conferred on the chief law enforcement officer or such official by the laws of such State to conduct investigations or to administer oaths or affirmations or to compel the attendance of witnesses or the production of documentary and other evidence.
- (4) Limitation on state action while federal action pending. If the Federal Trade Commission or the appropriate Federal regulator has instituted a civil action or an administrative action under section 8 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act for a violation of this title, no State may, during the pendency of such action, bring an action under this section against any defendant named in the complaint of the Commission or the appropriate Federal regulator for any violation of this title that is alleged in that complaint.
- (5) Limitations on State Actions for Certain Violations
- (A) Violation of injunction required. A State may not bring an action against a person under paragraph (1)(B) for a violation described in any of paragraphs (1) through (3) of section 623(c), unless
 - (i) the person has been enjoined from committing the violation, in an action brought by the State under paragraph (1)(A); and
 - (ii) the person has violated the injunction.
 - (B) Limitation on damages recoverable. In an action against a person under paragraph (1)(B) for a violation described in any of paragraphs (1) through (3) of section 623(c), a State may not recover any damages incurred before the date of the violation of an injunction on which the action is based.

(d) Enforcement under other authority. For the purpose of the exercise by any agency referred to in subsection (b) of this section of its powers under any Act referred to in that subsection, a violation of any requirement imposed under this title shall be deemed to be a violation of a requirement imposed under that Act. In addition to its powers under any provision of law specifically referred to in subsection (b) of this section, each of the agencies referred to in that subsection may exercise, for the purpose of enforcing compliance with any requirement imposed under this title any other authority conferred on it by law.

(e) Regulatory authority

(1) The Federal banking agencies referred to in paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (b) shall jointly prescribe such regulations as necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act with respect to any persons identified under paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (b), and the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System shall have authority to prescribe regulations consistent with such joint regulations with respect to bank holding companies and affiliates (other than depository institutions and consumer reporting agencies) of such holding companies.

(3) Annual summary reports. Each consumer reporting agency described in section 603(p) shall submit an annual summary report to the Commission on consumer complaints received by the agency on identity theft or fraud alerts.

(g) FTC regulation of coding of trade names. If the Commission determines that a person described in paragraph (9) of section 623(a) has not met the requirements of such paragraph, the Commission shall take action to ensure the person's compliance with such paragraph, which may include issuing model guidance or prescribing reasonable policies and procedures, as necessary to ensure that such person complies with such paragraph.

- (D) Definition. For purposes of subparagraph (A), the term “reasonable cause to believe that the information is inaccurate” means having specific knowledge, other than solely allegations by the consumer, that would cause a reasonable person to have substantial doubts about the accuracy of the information.

(2) Duty to correct and update information. A person who

- (A) regularly and in the ordinary course of business furnishes information to one or more consumer reporting agencies about the person's transactions or experiences with any consumer; and
 - (B) has furnished to a consumer reporting agency information that the person determines is not complete or accurate, shall promptly notify the consumer reporting agency of that determination and provide to the agency any corrections to that information, or any additional information, that is necessary to make the information provided by the person to the agency complete and accurate, and shall not thereafter furnish to the agency any of the information that remains not complete or accurate.
- (3) Duty to provide notice of dispute. If the completeness or accuracy of any information furnished by any person to any consumer reporting agency is disputed to such person by a consumer, the person may not furnish the information to any consumer reporting agency without notice that such information is disputed by the consumer.
